MUSÉE DE LA CIVILISATION

The Supreme Court of Canada is coming to Quebec City in September to hear two important cases. While in town, the nine judges will host a free public event to answer questions about:

- How do cases get to the Supreme Court of Canada?
- How does the Supreme Court decide Canada's toughest legal questions?
- What do judges do?
- How does the Court decide questions about peoples' rights and freedoms?

Guarantee yourself a seat by registering today!

The Supreme Court of Canada is one of the country's most important institutions. It makes decisions that affect the lives of all Quebecers.

Remember, this is not a legal information clinic. The judges can't answer questions about specific cases.

Please arrive early to ensure you have enough time for security screening.
Doors will open at 1:45 p.m. and security screening will start at 1:30 p.m.

Journalists and official photographers will be on site and you may be photographed.
Photos may be used on the Court's social media platforms and publications such as the annual Year in Review.
